John Murcott extends a warm welcome to all at his warm friendly, traditional family pub set in this famous historical town of Laugharne.

The town of course is famous as the birthplace of Dylan Thomas, and thousands flock to this inviting town in West Wales.

The Cross House Inn is ideally located in Grist Square at the centre of town and can cater for any travellers thirst stocking real ales, beers and lagers, wines, spirits and soft drinks.

Food is also amply covered with lunch served 12-3pm and evening meals from 6-9pm seven days a week. A Sunday lunch is also catered for. The premises are air conditioned for extra comfort during the summer and a beer garden is also a popular feature at The Cross House.

Daily Specials are also available for those people looking for traditional home cooked meals. Big screen is also available for sporting events and a juke box and gaming machines are provided for those wishing a more lively day or night out.

So why not call in to meet John and his friendly staff at The Cross House Inn? - You'll be very welcome!
